Parents' Beliefs about Children, Scott A. Miller, 2020. This book synthesizes a large and diverse literature on what parents believe about children in general and their own children in particular. Its scope is broad, encompassing beliefs directed to numerous aspects of children's development in both the cognitive and social realms that span the age periods from birth through adolescence. In examining the nature and origins of parents' beliefs, this book is central to our understanding of both parenting practices and children's development, and it speaks to some of the most important pragmatic issues for which psychology can provide answers.

Cognitive Sciences and Education in Non-WEIRD Populations, Marcus Vinicius Alves, Roberta Ekuni, Maria Julia Hermida, Juan Valle-Lisboa, 2022-08-27. This book aims to present theoretical and practical innovations in the cognitive sciences and education fields, focusing on studies and research conducted with non-WEIRD, i.e., western educated industrialized rich and democratic populations, especially from Latin America. Cognitive sciences and neuroscience have increased exponentially their knowledge in the last three decades, and today there is a corpus of knowledge about our central nervous system and its functioning that adequately understood has promising contributions for the educational field. Most of this knowledge, however, comes from central countries, North America, Europe, and is based on studies conducted on what has been called WEIRD populations. Much less is known about how the integration of cognitive sciences and neuroscience could impact education in non-WEIRD populations, which represent the great majority of the world's population and have quite diverse cultural and social characteristics. So the main aim of this book is to present a non-WEIRD scientific approach to problems in the cognitive sciences, neuroscience, and education fields. Research presented in this contributed volume takes advantage of the diverse populations that characterize developing countries to explore how underrepresented populations learn what works and what does not for cognitive science and education, not only for the developing world but also for understanding diversity in the whole world Departing from this focus on diversity chapters in this book present studies on theories beliefs and misconceptions about the relationship between cognitive sciences and education child and adolescent cognitive development mathematics and language academic performance and cognitive interventions to improve educational practice Cognitive Sciences and Education in Non WEIRD Populations A Latin American Perspective will be a useful resource for both cognitive scientists and educational researchers interested in developing a more culturally sensitive approach to basic and applied research on cognitive sciences of education
