Stimulating agricultural technology adoption: Lessons from fertilizer use among Ugandan potato farmers Nazziwa-Nviiri, Lydia, Van Campenhout, Bjorn, Amwonya, David, 2017-02-17 In the context of a growing population in an already densely populated area agricultural yields will need to increase without putting additional stress on the environment The adoption of modern inputs by smallholders is an important ingredient of agricultural transformation In this study we explore plot level household level and institutional level characteristics associated with agricultural technology adoption behavior among smallholder farmers The aim is to uncover correlations that can guide the design of policies and incentives that are likely to increase adoption We explicitly differentiate between fixed costs that are likely to affect the decision to use the technology and variable costs that are more relevant for the decision regarding use intensity In addition we examine how the importance of each of these characteristics differs with asset status To do so we use data from about 1 880 potato plots cultivated by 500 randomly selected potato growers in southwestern Uganda We first categorize households into poorly endowed and well endowed asset classes based on their access to productive assets We then estimate double hurdle models for take up and use intensity of fertilizer for each group The results show that the factors associated with the decision to use fertilizer are often different from those associated with the decision about how much fertilizer to use and that the characteristics correlated with fertilizer adoption differ between asset poor and asset rich farmers For instance asset poor female headed households are less likely to use fertilizer but if they do they use more of it than male headed households Our results also suggest fertilizer packaging and distribution are important factors in fertilizer adoption decisions due to their impact on costs related to both indivisibilities and uncertainty

Democracy and the Discourse on Relevance Within the Academic Profession at Makerere University Kronstad Felde, Tor Halvorsen, 2021-09-20

Democracy and the Discourse on Relevance Within the Academic Profession at Makerere University is set against the backdrop of the spread of neoliberal ideas and reforms since the 1980s While accepting that these ideas are rooted in a longer history the authors reveal how neoliberalism has transformed the university sector and the academic profession In particular they focus on how understandings of what knowledge is relevant and how this is decided have changed Taken as a whole reforms have sought to reorient universities and academics towards economic development in various ways Shifts in how institutions and academics achieve recognition and status combined with the flow of public funds away from the universities and the increasing privatisation of educational services are steadily downgrading the value of public higher education As research universities adopt user and market oriented operating models and prioritise the demands of the corporate sector in their research agendas the sale of intellectual property is increasingly becoming a primary criterion for determining the relevance of academic knowledge All these changes have largely succeeded in transforming the discourse around the role of the academic profession in society In this context Makerere University in Uganda has been lauded as having successfully achieved transformation However far from highlighting the allegedly positive outcomes of this reform this book provides worrying insights into the dissolution of Ugandas academic culture Drawing on interviews with over ninety academics at Makerere University from deans to doctoral students the authors provide first hand accounts of the pressures and problems the reforms have created Disempowered overworked and under resourced many academics are forced to take on consultancy work to make ends meet The evidence presented here stands in stark contrast to the successes claimed by the university However as the authors also show local resistance to the neoliberal model is rising as academics begin to collaborate to regain control over what knowledge is considered relevant and wrestle with deepening democracy The authors careful expos of how neoliberalism devalues academic knowledge and the urgency of countering this trend makes Democracy and the Discourse on Relevance Within the Academic Profession at Makerere University highly relevant for anyone working in higher education or involved in shaping policy for this sector
