The hegemony of finance compels a new orientation for everyone and everything companies care more about the moods of their shareholders than about longstanding commercial success governments subordinate citizen welfare to appeasing creditors and individuals are concerned less with immediate income from labor than appreciation of their capital goods skills connections and reputations That firms states and people depend more on their ratings than on the product of their activities also changes how capitalism is resisted For activists the focus of grievances shifts from the extraction of profit to the conditions under which financial institutions allocate credit While the exploitation of employees by their employers has hardly been curbed the power of investors to select investees to decide who and what is deemed creditworthy has become a new site of social struggle In clear and compelling prose Michel Feher explains the extraordinary shift in conduct and orientation generated by financialization Above all he articulates the new political resistances and aspirations that investees draw from their rated agency
