

"THE JAM GAG" AN ILLUSTRATED GUIDE

Hey! Are you tired of flimsy cloth gags that don't do anything? Do the layers slip or come untied? Noisy sub getting you down?

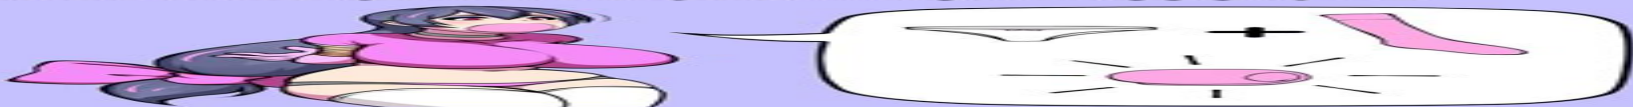

Well, there for you guys know I fucking love layered cloth gags. Not only do I draw them, but I actually use them in real life. And after many hours of them, research, and a few tests, I've come up with what makes a gag work. It's particularly like, it's an old standby, on which I've unintentionally stumbled upon the "Jam Gag".

Before you start, you will of course, need cloth for this. Ideally, you want to make your own bandage or jersey for this. Make sure your bandages are big enough for material to go over the top of the gag. The cloth should be big enough to go over the top of the gag and in your fabric store's remnant bin, or just cut up old T-shirts.

I've made bandages out of old T-shirts, but I've also made them out of old bandages. If you want an aesthetically pleasing gag, you can use old bandages. If you want a gag that is more of the face, you can use old bandages. If you want a gag that is more of the face, you can use old bandages. If you want a gag that is more of the face, you can use old bandages.

Anyway, let's get started. First and foremost is MOUTH PACKING! Anything soft will do for this, as long as there's nothing that might slide down the throat. In my videos, I use a soft, fluffy material, but you can use anything you like. If you want a really mouth-filling, silencing gag, try this:

First, stuff a pair of panties (or other piece of fabric of comparable size) into a sock. Anything soft will do. Then, just roll the sock up into a ball, shaped like a ball, and you're good. Equilateral material of the sock will help facilitate comfort and really fill the mouth.

This type of mouth packing works sort of like a large ballgag; when putting it in, it helps to push it in a bit of field testing before you find the ideal fit. A large ballgag, you'll likely need to do a bit of field testing before you find the ideal fit.

Now, for a normal OTM (or "OTM") gag. This is a gag that is made of a piece of cloth, with a piece of cloth tied at the back of the head. The gag is made of a piece of cloth, with a piece of cloth tied at the back of the head. The gag is made of a piece of cloth, with a piece of cloth tied at the back of the head.

This is what I call a "high OTM" or "HOTM". With a typical OTM gag tied at the back of the head, the gag is made of a piece of cloth, with a piece of cloth tied at the back of the head. The gag is made of a piece of cloth, with a piece of cloth tied at the back of the head.

Now for a normal OTM (or more, if you're really drawn to it). This is a gag that is made of a piece of cloth, with a piece of cloth tied at the back of the head. The gag is made of a piece of cloth, with a piece of cloth tied at the back of the head.

Next: OTNI Yeah buddy.

A quick tangent: When drawing, if I want the gag to look nice and big, one thing I'll do is have the gag look like it's coming out of the mouth. The more dramatic this angle is, the more it will look like it's coming out of the mouth. You'll notice that nearly all of my pics with really big gags have this to some degree.

Now let's add a headscarf. These are awesome. In addition to squeezing the jaws "shut" around the packing, a headscarf will also help keep the other layers from slipping. Have the wearer tie it down before tying the gag in and it's done!

Then to make sure the headscarf stays put, let's put another OTN on top of that. The wearer should be feeling pretty well-muffled by this point, but we're not done yet!

Cloth collar. You'll want to make this nice and soft. I recommend using a half knot if you want to be extra secure. You can also use a bandage rather than rolling it. This helps distribute pressure more evenly.

Let's add one last OTN layer for good measure. Nice.

Can this gag be used in a extra-large size? I think so. I think it can be used in a extra-large size. I think it can be used in a extra-large size.

It's called "The Jam Gag". It's a gag that is made of a piece of cloth, with a piece of cloth tied at the back of the head. The gag is made of a piece of cloth, with a piece of cloth tied at the back of the head.

Anyway, that should cover it. I hope you can have a good time with this. I hope you can have a good time with this. I hope you can have a good time with this.
