The book then presents a series of papers analyzing and testing the economic motivation for international migration. Finally, the focus is shifted to the effect of immigration policies and their consequences on immigration and the economy.

Handbook of Research on Learning and Instruction Richard E. Mayer, Patricia A. Alexander, 2016-10-04

During the past 30 years, researchers have made exciting progress in the science of learning (i.e., how people learn) and the science of instruction (i.e., how to help people learn). This second edition of the Handbook of Research on Learning and Instruction is intended to provide an overview of these research advances. With chapters written by leading researchers from around the world, this volume examines learning and instruction in a variety of learning environments, including in classrooms and out of classrooms, and with a variety of learners, including K-16 students and adult learners. Contributors to this volume demonstrate how and why educational practice should be guided by research evidence concerning what works in instruction. The Handbook is written at a level that is appropriate for graduate students, researchers, and practitioners interested in an evidence-based approach to learning and instruction. The book is divided into two sections: learning and instruction. The learning section consists of chapters on how people learn in reading, writing, mathematics, science, history, second language, and physical education, as well as how people acquire the knowledge and processes required for critical thinking, studying, self-regulation, and motivation. The instruction section consists of chapters on effective instructional methods, feedback, examples, questioning, tutoring, visualizations, simulations, inquiry, discussion, collaboration, peer modeling, and adaptive instruction. Each chapter in this second edition of the Handbook has been thoroughly revised to integrate recent advances in the field of educational psychology. Two chapters have been added to reflect advances in both helping students develop learning strategies and using technology to individualize instruction. As with the first edition, this updated volume showcases the best research being done on learning and instruction by traversing a broad array of academic domains, learning constructs, and instructional methods.

Childhood, Learning & Everyday Life in Three Asia-Pacific Cities I-Fang Lee, Sue Saltmarsh, Nicola Yelland, 2023-04-17

This book introduces findings from an international cross-cultural and interdisciplinary study of children's everyday experiences of growing up and going to school in the context of the three global cities of Hong Kong, Singapore, and Melbourne. It takes the premise that children's learning and orientations to educational success are shaped by everyday cultural practices at home and at school, by policy contexts that both produce and respond to educational and cultural norms, and by individual and familial desires and aspirations. Drawing on research conducted with primary school-aged children in

Year 4 the book considers how day to day routines such as going to school engaging in extra curricular activities outside of school and spending time at home with family intersect with the broader milieus of education policy ideals in a changing and interconnected world Through a combination of visual methodologies surveys ethnographic observations in schools classrooms and cityscapes re enactments of everyday activities with children at home and sociological education policy analysis this book shows both the richness of children s everyday lives and learning in global cities as well as exploring questions that pose challenges to educational and social norms

Homelands Nadav G. Shelef,2020-07-15 Why are some territorial partitions accepted as the appropriate borders of a nation s homeland whereas in other places conflict continues despite or even because of division of territory In Homelands Nadav G Shelef develops a theory of what homelands are that acknowledges both their importance in domestic and international politics and their change over time These changes he argues driven by domestic political competition and help explain the variation in whether partitions resolve conflict Homelands also provides systematic comparable data about the homeland status of lost territory over time that allow it to bridge the persistent gap between constructivist theories of nationalism and positivist empirical analyses of international relations

The Right to Maim Jasbir K. Puar,2017-10-11 In The Right to Maim Jasbir K Puar brings her pathbreaking work on the liberal state sexuality and biopolitics to bear on our understanding of disability Drawing on a stunning array of theoretical and methodological frameworks Puar uses the concept of debility bodily injury and social exclusion brought on by economic and political factors to disrupt the category of disability She shows how debility disability and capacity together constitute an assemblage that states use to control populations Puar s analysis culminates in an interrogation of Israel s policies toward Palestine in which she outlines how Israel brings Palestinians into biopolitical being by designating them available for injury Supplementing its right to kill with what Puar calls the right to maim the Israeli state relies on liberal frameworks of disability to obscure and enable the mass debilitation of Palestinian bodies Tracing disability s interaction with debility and capacity Puar offers a brilliant rethinking of Foucauldian biopolitics while showing how disability functions at the intersection of imperialism and racialized capital

Urbanization with Chinese Characteristics: The Hukou System and Migration Kam Wing Chan, 2018-04-19 Many agree that rapid urbanization in China in the late 20th and early 21st centuries is a mega process significantly reshaping China and the global economy. China's urbanization also carries a certain mystique which has long fascinated generations of scholars and journalists alike. As it has turned out many of the asserted Chinese feats are mostly fancied claims or gross misinterpretations of statistics for example. There does exist however an urbanization that displays rather uncommon Chinese characteristics that remain to inadequately understood. Building on his three decades of careful research Professor Kam Wing Chan expertly dissects the complexity of China's hukou system migration urbanization and their interrelationships in this set of journal articles published in the last ten years. These works range from seminal papers on Chinese urban definitions and statistics and broad perspective analysis of the hukou system of its first semi centennial to examinations of migration trends and geography and critical evaluations of China's 2014 urbanization blueprint and hukou reform plan. This convenient assemblage contains many of Chan's recent important works. Together they also form a relatively coherent set on this topic. They are essential readings to anyone serious about gaining a true understanding of the prodigious urbanization in contemporary China.
