

SHARON SHAW

When I was a young girl, I was always drawn to the stories of angels. I would often imagine myself as one of them, with long, flowing robes and a halo. I would fly through the clouds, delivering messages from God to the people on earth. I would be a messenger of peace and love, bringing hope and comfort to those who were in need. I would be a guardian angel, protecting the innocent and punishing the wicked. I would be a warrior, fighting against the forces of evil and bringing about the triumph of good. I would be a healer, mending the broken and bringing life to the dead. I would be a guide, leading the lost and helping the迷途者 find their way home. I would be a friend, always there for those who were in need, offering a listening ear and a helping hand. I would be a lover, bringing joy and happiness to those who were lonely and sad. I would be a savior, bringing redemption and salvation to those who were lost and damned. I would be a hero, fighting for the good and standing up for the oppressed. I would be a champion, defending the weak and the defenseless. I would be a warrior, fighting for the truth and the light. I would be a hero, fighting for the good and standing up for the oppressed. I would be a champion, defending the weak and the defenseless. I would be a warrior, fighting for the truth and the light.
