Explaining Life Through Evolution Prosanta Chakrabarty,2022-04-29 The story of four billion years of eight million lives Looking forward to an unputdownable book on that explains life Well here it is Explaining Life Through Evolution opens a window to 4 billion years of 8 million lives that we see in this planet This book does not simply narrate the story of evolution It is more than about where we came from It brings to light who we are As humans we naturally focus more on identifying differences between us no matter how small they are Prosanta demystifies this notion to emphasize our similarities with each other than many of us are willing to believe As more and more people take ancestry tests sending their DNA samples and money to genealogy testing centres we need to be educated on what the results actually mean scientifically and we all have to decide together what it means socially We should be celebrating the fact that this diversity comes from the same little drops of water and sunlight each just shining a little differently Like all species we are defined by our differences as much as by our similarities Prosanta encourages us to think of life as being this book which is always in the making We are just only seeing the last few pages of each chapter If you look out on the eight million species that we share this planet with think of them all being four billion years of evolution They re all the product of that Think of us all as young leaves on this ancient and gigantic tree of life all of us connected by invisible branches not just to each other but to our extinct relatives and our evolutionary ancestors Evocative comprehensive and argumentative this is a must read and reread a book which will compel you to imagine and reimagine life around us This'll Be The Day That I Die John Michael Griffin,2015-03-25 On Christmas Day December 25 2012 four scientists working at the Cold Spring Harbor Labs on Long Island announce a discovery that will change the course of humanity and pit science against theological beliefs that have existed since time began The team of genetic scientists have located and defined a human gene that can accurately identify the length of a human life from their first day to when their last day will come about Their 4 years of study of the gene offers no reasons for a person's demise except that they can predict with absolute certainty when an individual tested will meet their death The evidence rocks the foundations of religions worldwide and shakes the faith of humankind which has believed that only God has the power to control such decisions Nations around the globe take up the debate over who defines not the start but the end of a human life The debate will linger for years But the discovery also shakes the lives of four test volunteers that had agreed to be subjects and donated their DNA For each of the 4 subjects find out that they are scheduled to die exactly one year from the date of the announcement December 25 2013 will be the day that they die The four total strangers to each other seemingly in perfect health and all from completely separate walks of life and circumstances know only that they share the same date of death The wave of human emotions that accompanies their terrible news at first overwhelms them as they go from disbelief and denial to resignation and resolution They each take a different course as they prepare themselves by looking back on their lives and numbering the days they have left What happens to them and how the human spirit can change so suddenly becomes the focus as each person moves forward towards their final day of our most precious possession life
