

PHYSICS 2000: LENSES, REFLECTIONS AND REFRACTIONS AND THE SPEED OF LIGHT

CONCEPTS

The study of reflection of light on flat and curved surfaces, and refraction of light through different media, will be first two small steps of a course long.

PHET simulation: Geometric Optics

For flat, curved mirrors and lenses, geometric optics, understanding of:
convex/concave mirrors, lenses

How incident light to the parallel lines by entering and exiting lenses. Also, the refraction of light. (This subject: Shedding light, Geometric Optics simulation)

TO DO

Light can be considered as a beam, or ray, that travels in straight lines if the size of wavelength (propagation) is less than the wavelength of light. Light rays travel in straight lines unless they are scattered by a different medium, point of it is not light itself but the wave motion (oscillation) for the light. The light ray is the wave motion in the propagation part of the light with some other motion, and the direction of change. This process is called as the wave, oscillation of reflection follows the law of reflection.

Law of Reflection is also in Figure 1, showing that when a light ray strikes a surface, the angle of incidence, θ_i , is equal to the angle of reflection, θ_r . Both angles are measured from the normal, the perpendicular to the surface. This is true for flat as well as curved surfaces. Curved surfaces which bulge outward are called convex, while those that bulge inward are called concave. If the surface is spherical, or circular, then the reflecting ray may either converge to a point (focus, or focus point) or diverge from a point (focus point).

(In all figures, the red line indicates light rays, the dashed line indicates the normal.)
