Economic dimensions have been somewhat neglected in research on nature policy and management of marine ecosystem exploitation The current book aims to fill this gap It examines the mismatches of natural socio economic and regulatory processes and regimes in time and space This involves dealing with the complexity and uncertainty that are inherent to the interaction of marine ecosystems and economic systems The approach adopted is based on the idea that the design of sustainability policies requires an integration of insights from resource environmental and ecological economics on the one hand and marine biology and environmental sciences on the other hand For this purpose use is made of integrated assessment on the basis of theoretical and applied mathematical models The book is the result of a large project hosted by the Department of Spatial Economics of the Free University in Amsterdam under the supervision of the first author The project received funding from the Netherlands Organisation for Scientific Research NWO through a priority program titled Sustainable Use and Conservation of Marine Living Resources which was initiated and coordinated by Prof Wim Wolff of the University of Groningen The work reported here has greatly benefited from external advice given by marine biologists who participated in this research program Introduction to the Modelling of Marine Ecosystems W. Fennel, T.

Neumann, 2004-08-24 Modelling of marine ecosystems is a rapidly developing branch of interdisciplinary oceanographic research Introduction to the Modelling of Marine Ecosystems is the first consistent and comprehensive introduction to the development of models of marine ecosystems It begins with simple first steps of modelling and develops more and more complex models This step by step approach to increasing the complexity of the models is intended to allow students of biological oceanography and interested scientists with only limited experience in mathematical modelling to explore the theoretical framework and familiarize oneself with the methods The book describes how biological model components can be integrated into three dimensional circulation models and how such models can be used for numerical experiments The book illustrates the mathematical aspects of modelling and gives application examples The tutorial aspect of the book is supported by a set of MATLAB programs which are provided on an accompanying CD Rom and which can be used to reproduce many of the results presented in the book Also available in paperback ISBN 0 444 51704 9
