Why and How is the self related to the brain midline regions? Georg Northoff, Niall W Duncan, Pengmin Qin, 2014-09-26 What the self is and where it comes from has been one of the great problems of philosophy for thousands of years As science and medicine have progressed this question has moved to also become a central one in psychology psychiatry and neuroscience The advent of in vivo brain imaging has now allowed the scientific investigation of the self to progress further than ever Many such imaging studies have indicated that brain structures along the cortical midline are particularly closely related to self specific processing This association between cortical midline structures CMS and self is reinforced by the involvement of these regions in other self oriented processes such as mind wandering or stimulus valuation Those midline regions involved in self processing also overlap with another network the default mode network which shows high brain activity during the so called resting state indicating that there may be a special relationship between self processing and intrinsic activity Although such promising groundwork linking the self and CMS has been carried out many questions remain These include what features of the midline regions lead to their apparent importance in self processing How can we appropriately account for confounding factors such as familiarity or task effects in our experiments How is the self related to other features of the mind such as consciousness How is our methodology influencing our attempts to link the self and the brain The purpose of this ebook is to address some of these questions including opinions perspectives and hypotheses about the concept of the self the relationship between CMS and the self and the specific function of these brain regions in self processing It also includes original research papers describing EEG fMRI and behavioral experiments investigating different aspects of the self

Topics from Australian Conferences on Teaching Statistics Helen MacGillivray, Brian Phillips, Michael A.

Martin, 2014-09-01 The first OZCOTS conference in 1998 was inspired by papers contributed by Australians to the 5th International Conference on Teaching Statistics. In 2008 as part of the program of one of the first National Senior Teaching Fellowships the 6th OZCOTS was held in conjunction with the Australian Statistical Conference with Fellowship keynotes and contributed papers, optional refereeing and proceedings. This venture was so successful that the 7th and 8th OZCOTS were similarly run, conjoined with Australian Statistical Conferences in 2010 and 2012. Authors of papers from these OZCOTS conferences were invited to develop chapters for refereeing and inclusion in this volume. There are sections on keynote topics, undergraduate curriculum and learning, professional development, postgraduate learning and papers from OZCOTS 2012. Because OZCOTS aim to unite statisticians and statistics educators, the approaches this volume takes are immediately relevant to all who have a vested interest in good teaching practices. Globally, statistics as a discipline, statistical pedagogy and statistics in academia and industry are all critically important to the modern information society. This volume addresses these roles within the wider society as well as questions that are specific to the discipline itself. Other chapters share research on learning and teaching statistics in interdisciplinary work and student preparation for futures in academia, government and industry.

Options for Aged Care in China Elena Glinskaya, Zhanlian Feng, 2018-11-28 China is aging at an unprecedented rate. Improvements in life expectancy and the consequences of the decades-old family planning policy have led to a rapid increase in the elderly population. According to the United Nations World Population Prospects, the proportion of older people age 65 and over will increase by about one fourth by 2030 and the elderly will account for about one quarter of the total population by 2050. Population aging will not only pose challenges for elder care but also have an impact on the economy and all aspects of society. World Bank 2016a. The government is aware of the need to develop an efficient and sustainable approach to aged care. To this end, the General Office of the State Council issued the 12th Five Year Plan for the Development of Aged Care Services in China and the Development Plan for a System of Social Services for the Aged 2011-2015. It is now in the process of formulating the 13th Five Year National Plan on Aging, which will further elaborate and finalize the reform roadmap for 2016 to 2020. The Plan is expected to be finalized and launched by June 2016. The National Development and Reform Commission (NDRC) helped draft these plans and is now leading the development of policy measures for the provision of social services for the elderly. This volume has been prepared to support the translation of the broad ideas on aged care provision expressed in the 12th and 13th Five Year Plans and other government plans into reality and to help the government tackle the challenges described above. It strives to identify a policy framework that fits the Chinese context and can be put in place gradually. Specifically, it aims to provide an up-to-date understanding of the evolving aged care landscape in China, review international experiences in long-term care.

provision financing and quality assurance and assess their relevance to China's current situation discuss implications of current developments and trends for the future of aged care in China and propose policy options based on available evidence and best practices
