Chemical Engineering Dynamics John Ingham, Irving J. Dunn, Elmar Heinzle, Jiri E. Prenosil, Jonathan B. Snape, 2008-02-08 In this book the modelling of dynamic chemical engineering processes is presented in a highly understandable way using the unique combination of simplified fundamental theory and direct hands on computer simulation The mathematics is kept to a minimum and yet the nearly 100 examples supplied on www.wiley-vch.de illustrate almost every aspect of chemical engineering science Each example is described in detail including the model equations They are written in the modern user friendly simulation language Berkeley Madonna which can be run on both Windows PC and Power Macintosh computers Madonna solves models comprising many ordinary differential equations using very simple programming including arrays It is so powerful that the model parameters may be defined as sliders which allow the effect of their change on the model behavior to be seen almost immediately Data may be included for curve fitting and sensitivity or multiple runs may be performed The results can be seen simultaneously on multiple graph windows or by using overlays The resultant learning effect of this is tremendous The examples can be varied to fit any real situation and the suggested exercises provide practical guidance The extensive experience of the authors both in university teaching and international courses is reflected in this well balanced presentation which is suitable for the teacher the student the chemist or the engineer This book provides a greater understanding of the formulation and use of mass and energy balances for chemical engineering in a most stimulating manner This book is a third edition which also includes biological environmental and food process examples

Biomimicry for Optimization, Control, and Automation Kevin M. Passino, 2005-09-08 Biomimicry uses our scientific understanding of biological systems to exploit ideas from nature in order to construct some technology In this book we focus on how to use biomimicry of the functional operation of the hardware and software of biological systems for the development of optimization algorithms and feedback control systems that extend our capabilities to implement sophisticated levels of automation The primary focus is not on the modeling emulation or analysis of some biological system The focus is on using bio inspiration to inject new ideas techniques and perspective into the engineering of complex automation systems There are many biological processes that at some level of abstraction can be represented as optimization processes many of which have as a basic purpose automatic control decision making or automation For instance at the level of everyday experience we can view the actions of a human operator of some process e.g. the driver of a car as being a series of the best choices he or she makes in trying to achieve some goal staying on the road emulation of this decision making process amounts to modeling a type of biological optimization and decision making process and implementation of the resulting algorithm results in human mimicry for automation There are clearer examples of logical optimization processes that are used for control and automation when you consider nonhuman biological or behavioral processes or the internal ology of the human and not the resulting external behavioral characteristics like driving a car For instance there are homeostasis processes where for instance temperature is regulated in the human body
