These findings suggest that the observed association between the use of a mobile phone and the risk of a road traffic accident is not a simple one. The results suggest that the use of a mobile phone while driving is a complex phenomenon, and that the risk of an accident is not necessarily increased by the use of a mobile phone. The results also suggest that the use of a mobile phone while driving is a complex phenomenon, and that the risk of an accident is not necessarily increased by the use of a mobile phone.
