Abstract—The authors examined the effects of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the health-related quality of life (HRQL) of older adults with knee osteoarthritis (OA). The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The study group consisted of 20 older adults with knee OA who were randomly assigned to a supervised walking program. The control group consisted of 20 older adults with knee OA who were randomly assigned to a waitlist control. The study was conducted in a community setting. The study was approved by the Institutional Review Board of the University of Illinois at Chicago. The study was funded by a grant from the National Institutes of Health. The study was conducted from January 2008 to June 2009. The study was a randomized, controlled trial.
