Abstract

¹ Following a literature search, 10 research papers were selected to explore the experiences of the respondents. Through the rapid appraisal research approach, the applied topics of these researches are the effects of the organizational structure, work environment, training (referring to) target, adult education, assessment and evaluation, curriculum, and learning resources.

Results on the two-dimensional case are reported in Table 1. The results show that the proposed method is able to accurately estimate the parameters of the model, even in the presence of noise. The proposed method is also able to estimate the parameters of the model in the presence of outliers, which is a common problem in many applications.
