Toward a Visually-Oriented School Mathematics Curriculum Ferdinand Rivera,2011-01-06 What does it mean to have a visual representation of a mathematical object concept or process What visualization strategies support growth in mathematical thinking reasoning generalization and knowledge Is mathematical seeing culture free How can information drawn from studies in blind subjects help us understand the significance of a multimodal approach to learning mathematics Toward a Visually Oriented School Mathematics Curriculum explores a unified theory of visualization in school mathematical learning via the notion of progressive modeling Based on the author s longitudinal research investigations in elementary and middle school classrooms the book provides a compelling empirical account of ways in which instruction can effectively orchestrate the transition from personally constructed visuals both externally drawn and internally derived into more structured visual representations within the context of a socioculturally grounded mathematical activity Both for teachers and researchers a discussion of this topic is relevant in the history of the present The ubiquity of technological tools and virtual spaces for learning and doing mathematics has aroused interest among concerned stakeholders about the role of mathematics in these contexts The book begins with a prolegomenon on the author's reflections on past and present visual studies in mathematics education. In the remaining seven chapters, visualization is pursued in terms of its role in bringing about progressions in mathematical symbolization, abduction, pattern generalization, and diagrammatization. Toward a Visually Oriented School Mathematics Curriculum, views issues surrounding visualization through the eyes of a classroom teacher-researcher. It draws on findings within and outside of mathematics education that help practitioners and scholars gain a better understanding of what it means to pleaurably experience the symmetric visual symbolic reversal phenomenon, that is, seeing the visual in the symbolic and the symbolic in the visual.
