Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were randomly assigned to a control group (CG) and an exercise group (EG). The EG performed a 12-week training program consisting of 3 sessions per week of 30 min of aerobic exercise at 70% of their maximum heart rate. The CG remained sedentary. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during a 30-min submaximal exercise test at the beginning and at the end of the 12-week period. The results showed that the EG had a significant decrease in HR at rest and during exercise, and a significant increase in HRR at rest and during exercise, compared to the CG. The findings suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary middle-aged men.
