From Therapeutic Relationships to Transitional Care

Cheryl Forchuk, 2021-03-21 This text provides a foundational understanding of therapeutic relationships and the transitional discharge model TDM a person centered evidence based model that supports a smooth transition from hospital to community for people with mental illness Starting with background into the ground breaking work of Dr Hildegard Peplau the mother of modern psychiatric nursing and moving towards a transdisciplinary transitional discharge perspective chapters introduce students and practitioners to theoretical historical and current perspectives on therapeutic relationships as they relate to transitional care These perspectives foreground empirical research and practical applications that can be implemented in hospital and community settings The Appendix features an essential TDM toolkit with forms learning topics and checklists developed by programs that implement TDM Essential reading for those studying psychiatric nursing this book combines theory research and best practices into a roadmap for students across nursing and psychiatric disciplines to coordinate these systems without having to implement radical changes to practice

Cancer in Context James Brennan, Clare

Moynihan, 2004 This book offers healthcare professionals academics and anyone affected by cancer a fresh and original approach to the supportive care of people with cancer It looks at the underlying reasons why cancer so often leads to high levels of distress and more importantly it suggests many practical ways distress can be minimised and prevented The actual experiences of cancer patients as recorded in their personal diaries are combined with theory research and practical clinical advice In each of its seven chapters Cancer in Context takes a different perspective towards supportive care in cancer It begins by considering how people in general manage and adjust to massive changes in their lives and in particular how they react to the threat of cancer It goes on to examine the lived experience of people with cancer as they negotiate the many changes and challenges that follow their diagnosis Of course cancer doesn't only affect the person who has the disease it also impacts on families partners and carers One chapter explores these and other issues such as sexual difficulties the needs of older people single people and gay and lesbian couples Chapter 4 shows that the social and cultural context of a person's life is critical to understanding their resources the way they are treated and the responses they make to serious illness However it is in the clinical context that professionals have an opportunity to minimise disruption to their patients quality of life as they endure the notorious demands of oncology treatments The book offers practical clinical advice on psychosocial aspects of conventional cancer treatments common treatment difficulties cancer rehabilitation and palliative care Chapter 6 provides a summary of the burgeoning area of information and communication skills within healthcare and finally the book ends by considering how doctors nurses radiographers and other healthcare professionals can maintain their supportive care in light of such high levels of stress and burnout among these staff groups
