II) Comprehension The ability to grasp the knowledge from material.	II) Understanding Interpreting meaning from material.
III) Application The ability to implement learned material.	III) Applying Carrying out or using a procedure through execution or implementation.
IV) Analysis The capability of breaking the material down for better understanding of its organizational structure.	IV) Analyzing Breaking material down to understand how they are interrelated and related to overall purpose or structure.
V) Synthesis The capability of putting components together to establish a coherent new whole.	V) Evaluation The ability to judge based on criteria and standards. Recommendations, critiques, and report can be created to show evaluation. In this taxonomy, creation comes after evaluation, as evaluation is considered an essential precursor to create something.
