Chips Are Down Alison Gazzard, 2016-02-19 The story of a pioneering microcomputer its beginnings as part of a national Computer Literary Project its innovative hardware and its creative uses In 1982 the British Broadcasting Corporation launched its Computer Literacy Project intended to introduce interested adults to the world of computers and computing The BBC accompanied this initiative with television programs courses books and software an early experiment in multi platform education The BBC along with Acorn Computers also introduced the BBC Microcomputer which would be at the forefront of the campaign The BBC Micro was designed to meet the needs of users in homes and schools to demystify computing and to counter the general pessimism among the media in Britain about technology In this book Alison Gazzard looks at the BBC Micro examining the early capabilities of multi platform content generation and consumption and the multiple literacies this approach enabled not only in programming and software creation but also in accessing information across a range of media and in do it yourself computing She links many of these early developments to current new media practices Gazzard looks at games developed for the BBC Micro including Granny s Garden an educational game for primary schools and Elite the seminal space trading game She considers the shift in focus from hardware to peripherals describing the Teletext Adapter as an early model for software distribution and the Domesday Project which combined texts video and still photographs as a hypermedia like experience Gazzard s account shows the BBC Micro not only as a vehicle for various literacies but also as a user oriented machine that pushed the boundaries of what could be achieved in order to produce something completely new

Weaponizing Civilian Protection Thomas Gregory, 2025-01-18 Weaponizing Civilian Protection exposes how coalition efforts to minimize and mitigate civilian casualties during the recent conflict in Afghanistan also worked to rationalize the harm inflicted upon Afghan civilians Drawing on declassified documents and interviews with coalition officials it traces how civilian protection was reimagined as a martial tactic rather than a humanitarian imperative with coalition officials reframing civilian casualties as strategic setbacks that could imperil the entire mission This book examines the restrictions that coalition officials imposed on combat operations to minimize unnecessary harm to civilians whilst showing how these restrictions served to constitute civilian casualties as necessary in certain situations rendering their lives losable and their deaths ungrievable At the same time it examines the post incident mitigation measures coalition officials used to prevent civilian casualties becoming strategic setbacks including the condolence payments that were offered when civilians were harmed Rather than seeking to make amends for the harm inflicted upon them it claims that these post incident mitigation measures are best characterized as a necropolitical device concerned with managing mortality more effectively Crucially Weaponizing Civilian Protection shows that co-opting civilian protection into a martial logic that is more concerned with winning wars than protecting the civilian population works to devalue and dehumanize civilians leaving them more vulnerable to death and destruction in future conflicts
