(1) Lonnie got to the train station well before the train was due to arrive, so he had plenty of time to regret his decision. When Celeste had emailed to ask him to meet her train, his first instinct had been to say no. He was busy, and besides, what could they possibly have in common anymore? But his mom insisted he couldn't be rude to such an old friend. "Don't be so sure it will go badly," his mom said. "You don't know what Celeste is like these days. You don't have to be so negative." So here he was, waiting. This was going to be incredibly awkward. Plus, all his friends had gone to this awesome film festival downtown, and he had to skip it. He checked the time on the big station clock. His friends were in the midst of watching his favorite classic animated film. It was hardly ever shown in theaters anymore. Instead, he was waiting for someone he hadn't seen in years. What a waste of time.

Life took over, with new friends and activities crowding out the past. Their moms still talked frequently, but Lonnie rarely thought of Celeste anymore.

(4) Then, one day when the two were juniors in high school, Lonnie received an email from Celeste. Celeste wrote to say that she would be coming north to Portland by train for an interview at the university. "I'm looking forward to seeing you again, Lonnie!" she added. Lonnie wished he could say the same. But they were strangers now. They'd only been friends because they lived near each other. They wouldn't have anything in common. She was always so brainy. She was probably studying calculus or something—and Lonnie hated math. He was better at making up stories or performing in school plays. What could he even say to her? He grimaced. Maybe they could talk about the cartoons they used to watch together, or how Lonnie had taught her to walk on her hands? He pictured her in the kitchen at his family's old house, her pigtails swinging upside down as he held her feet until she got her balance. Lonnie shook his head. His family moved out of that house six years ago. Celeste had never seen the house they lived in now. He checked the
