CORN CHRONICLES

THE JOURNEY FROM PLATE TO POOP

How the Digestive System Works

The digestive system is a complex network of organs that work together to break down food into nutrients that the body can use. It starts in the mouth, where food is chewed and mixed with saliva. The food then travels down the esophagus to the stomach, where it is broken down into smaller pieces. From the stomach, the food moves into the small intestine, where it is further broken down and nutrients are absorbed. The remaining waste then moves into the large intestine, where it is processed and eventually eliminated from the body.

Breaking Down is Hard to Do

While the digestive system is designed to break down food, it can sometimes have trouble. For example, if you eat too much food or eat food that is hard to digest, you may experience indigestion or heartburn. This happens because the stomach is unable to break down the food properly, leading to a buildup of acid and gas. To avoid these problems, it's important to eat a balanced diet and not overeat.

Let's Process This

Now that you know how the digestive system works, you can make better choices about what you eat. Eating a diet that is rich in fiber, fruits, and vegetables can help keep your digestive system healthy and functioning properly. So, next time you're at the market, remember to pick up some fresh produce and give your digestive system the love it needs.
