Any living thing is an organism. A food chain shows how food energy flows between one set of organisms in an area. Food chains start with a producer which gets its energy from the Sun in a process called photosynthesis. Next there is a herbivore which gets energy by eating a producer. Then there is a carnivore which gets energy from eating other animals. Finally, when organisms die they give food energy to decomposers. A food web is like a food chain except it shows how food energy flows among all organisms in a community. Food chains and food webs also help us figure out other interactions. A predator is an animal that hunts other animals. A prey is an animal that is hunted. When one organism in the food chain or food web is affected, all the others are affected too!
