ensuring the safety of the nation's food supply the U S Food and Drug Administration FDA oversees monitoring and intervention for 80 percent of the food supply The U S Food and Drug Administration's abilities to discover potential threats to food safety and prevent outbreaks of foodborne illness are hampered by impediments to efficient use of its limited resources and a piecemeal approach to gathering and using information on risks Enhancing Food Safety The Role of the Food and Drug Administration a new book from the Institute of Medicine and the National Research Council responds to a congressional request for recommendations on how to close gaps in FDA's food safety systems Enhancing Food Safety begins with a brief review of the Food Protection Plan FPP FDA's food safety philosophy developed in 2007 The lack of sufficient detail and specific strategies in the FPP renders it ineffectual The book stresses the need for FPP to evolve and be supported by the type of strategic planning described in these pages It also explores the development and implementation of a stronger more effective food safety system built on a risk based approach to food safety management Conclusions and recommendations include adopting a risk based decision making approach to food safety creating a data surveillance and research infrastructure integrating federal state and local government food safety programs enhancing efficiency of inspections and more Although food safety is the responsibility of everyone from producers to consumers the FDA and other regulatory agencies have an essential role In many instances the FDA must carry out this responsibility against a backdrop of multiple stakeholder interests inadequate resources and competing priorities Of interest to the food production industry consumer advocacy groups health care professionals and others Enhancing Food Safety provides the FDA and Congress with a course of action that will enable the agency to become more efficient and effective in carrying out its food safety mission in a rapidly changing world
