next pandemic Every single child diagnosed with measles represents a system failure an inexcusable unforced error The technology to prevent essentially 100 percent of measles cases has been in our hands since before the moon landing But this serious airborne disease once seemingly defeated is resurgent around the globe Why at a time when biomedical science is so advanced do parents turn away from vaccination endangering their own children and the health of the wider population Using a combination of patient narrative historical analysis and scientific research Dr Adam Ratner pediatrician and infectious disease specialist argues that the reawakening of measles and the subsequent coronavirus pandemic are bellwethers of forgotten knowledge indicators of decaying trust in science and an underfunded public health infrastructure Our collective amnesia is starkly revealed in the growth of the antivaccine movement and the missteps in our responses to the beginning of the coronavirus outbreak leading to preventable tragedies in both cases Trust in medicine and public health is at a nadir Declining vaccine confidence threatens a global reemergence of other vaccine preventable diseases in the coming years Ratner details how solving these problems requires the use of literal and figurative booster shots to gather new knowledge and retain the crucial lessons of the past Learning and remembering these lessons is our best hope for preparing for the next pandemic With attention and care and the tools we already have we can make the world much safer for children tomorrow than it is today
