Comparative Legal Systems Comparative Law grade B University of Auckland Law Faculty course Climate Change Law language English abstract This paper deals with the linkage of international human rights and climate change It focuses on the approach to deduce legal claims in the form of compensations and concrete measures from international human rights in the course of impairments through climate change This paper shall give a short overview on the issue climate change in general including its causes effects and the current political strategies It furthermore provides a synopsis on how human rights are impaired by global warming and climate change effects Unfortunately this essay will come to the conclusion that the international human rights approach struggles with functioning as a solitary legal basis in that context and with stepping beyond the just moral implication Human rights legislative potential rather lies in the development of more encompassing and more inclusive legal and political strategies Human rights may advisably be instrumentalized to strengthen political debates and be used as an incitement to set up enforceable and balanced agreements on reasonable measures of equalization and support

Climate Change, Human Impact and Green Energy Transformation Jan Kiciński, Patryk Chaja, 2021-07-23 This book indicates the most optimal solutions for the growing civilization problem related to climate change that takes place more and more rapidly on our planet It is divided into two parts In the first part the authors based on the available analyses and reports on climate change taking place on Earth

present their own point of view in relation to the above issue while trying to find answers to the following questions Why is it so difficult to admit that humans are responsible for the ongoing climate change Will climate change destroy life on Earth Can science and modern technologies stop this process In the second part of the book the authors propose a solution for the advancing climate change regarding the reduction of CO₂ emissions coming mainly from the energy sector On the basis of scientific achievements and implementations of research institutions in Poland especially the Institute of Fluid Flow Machinery of the Polish Academy of Sciences in Gdansk the book proposes directions of development of the energy transformation in Poland and other countries for which fossil fuels currently make a large contribution to the energy production process and are the main emitter of CO₂ to the atmosphere The book is addressed to citizens ecologists climatologists as well as politicians and experts responsible for shaping the climate and energy policy of the country level and also the world

Suffering the Science: Climate change, people, and poverty Alex Renton, 2009 Environmental Change, Forced Displacement and International Law Isabel M. Borges, 2018-12-07 This book explores the increasing concern over the extent to which those suffering from forced cross border displacement as a result of environmental change are protected under international human rights law Formally they are not entitled to admission or stay in a third state country a situation that has been identified as an international legal protection gap The book seeks to provide answers to two basic questions whether and to what extent existing international law protects cross border environmental displacement and whether and how existing formalized regional complementary protection standards can interpretively solidify and conceptualize protection for cross border environmental displacement The discussion outlines that the protection of the human person is not only an ex post facto obligation of states but must be increasingly seen as an ex ante one The analysis further suggests that the European Union regionally orientated protection regime can help states to consolidate an evolving protection paradigm of proactive and reactive measures being erected at the international level It can also narrow the identified legal protection gaps In so doing it helps states to reconceptualise protection as a holistic and dynamic enterprise This book will be of great interest to academics in law political science and human rights policy makers and civil society organisations both at national and international level

Struggles for Climate Justice Brandon Barclay Derman, 2020-03-14 This book provides an accessible but intellectually rigorous introduction to the global social movement for climate justice and addresses the socially uneven consequences of anthropogenic climate change Deploying relational understandings of nature society space and power Brandon Derman shows that climate change has been co produced with social inequality Mismatching levels of responsibility and vulnerability and institutions that emerged in tandem with those disproportionalities compose the terrain on which NGOs and social movements now contest climate injustice in a wide ranging politics of connection Case based chapters explore the defining commitments of affected and allied communities and how they have shaped specific struggles mobilizing human rights international treaties transnational activist forums national and local constituencies and broad based demonstrations Derman synthesizes these cases and similar efforts across the globe to identify and explore crosscutting themes in climate justice politics as well as the opportunities and dilemmas facing advocates and activists and those who would ally with them going forward How should we understand campaigns for climate justice What do these initiatives share and what differentiates them What in fact does climate justice mean in these contexts And what do the framing and progression of such efforts in different settings suggest about the broader conditions that produce and sustain climate injustice how those conditions could be unmade and what might take their place Struggles for Climate Justice approaches these questions from an interdisciplinary perspective accessible to graduate and advanced undergraduate students as well as scholars of geography social movements environmental politics policy and socio legal studies
