Indirect Characterization

GOSSAULT LITERACY COOKBOOK: Analyze how and why individuals, events, or ideas develop and interact over the course of a text.
Directions: Indirect Characterization is when an author develops a character through the character's speech, appearance, other characters' words, actions, and other characters' opinions. Give examples of indirect characterization in the work below for different characters.

The Character's Words		Others' Words about Character	Traits
(What does the character say about the character?)		(What does the other say about the character?)
Character
Caesar	As it is a banquet, let us leave these seats. I do not know the man I should point To stand in their open places.	CASSIUS: When shall they see all eyes that follow at Caesar? That he will with words compass it but one word? There is a Tiber in him and more angels. When there's a in him not only man.	Domination of others Suspicious Politically astute
Brutus	It is no weight to bear the general seat, But Caesar is the man who should And I will look to him with admiration, For let the gods so send me as I can The cause of heaven must have more weight than mine.	CASSIUS: Is he not high in all the people's hearts, Does that which would appear offense to us, In his contemplation, the instant returns, And change to virtue and to wisdom? CASSIUS: He will be worth it and our great need of it.	Politically astute Admired by the Roman people Seen as virtuous and a man of worth
	WILL BRUTUS, thou art noble, but I see The heavenly spark kindling thy face, And thou art a dishonored man. It is not From that it is dishonored, therefore it is not That noble mind that would be satisfied For what we know that would be satisfied For what we know that would be satisfied For what we know that would be satisfied	CASSIUS: I do not know the man I should point To stand in their open places. He looks death In every eye that meets his looks. He is a great orator and a man of words. He is a great orator and a man of words. He is a great orator and a man of words. He is a great orator and a man of words.	Admiration Lonely Ambitious and virtuous Does not value himself Feeling it essential
