Disruptive Innovation in Chinese and Indian Businesses Peter Ping Li, 2013-03-12 With the rapid development of China and India as new economic powers in global competition an obvious question is whether these emerging economies are great opportunities or threats Whilst answers are bound to differ depending on one s perspective it is increasingly clear that more local firms especially local entrepreneurs from these emerging economies will play a more critical role in global competition by becoming challengers to global incumbents. Indeed the fact that the majority of their populations are at the bottom of the pyramid and thus cannot afford products designed for the developed markets has made these emerging economies fertile ground for developing and applying disruptive innovations. A novel mix of key attributes distinctive from those of established technologies or business models: disruptive innovations are typically inferior yet affordable and good enough products or services which originate in lower end market segments but later move up to compete with those provided by incumbent firms. This book sheds new light on disruptive innovations both from and for the bottom of the pyramid in China and India from the point of view of local entrepreneurs and international firms seeking to operate their businesses there. It covers both the theoretical and practical implications of disruptive innovation using conceptual frameworks alongside detailed case studies whilst also providing a comparison of conditions and strategic options in India and China. Further unlike existing studies this book focuses on the neglected perspective of local challengers as the primary players and in doing so reveals the extent to which the future landscape of global competition may be shaped by disruptive innovation as well as its capacity to make the world flatter and more sustainable. This unique book will be valuable to both scholars and practitioners interested in disruptive innovation and those working in the fields of Asian studies, international business, economics and globalization.

Radio Receivers for Systems of Fixed and Mobile Communications Vasily V. Logvinov, Sergey M. Smolskiy, 2022-05-13 The textbook acquaints the reader with the architecture of receivers of analog and digital radio systems, helps to study the stages of designing a modern radio receiver and reveals the reasons and methods for its effective operation in networks for various purposes. Particular attention is paid to the methods of generating and processing signals in the receivers of digital systems with multiple access which make it possible to provide data transfer rates close to the maximum possible according to Shannon. As a textbook for students studying methods of optimal signal reception the book will also be useful to specialists in the field of telecommunications involved in the development of radio receivers. The book shows how the development of theoretical circuitry and integrated technologies led to the active introduction of algorithmic methods for signal processing, changed both the design of receivers and the methods of forming the information flow in free space MIMO beamforming. The creation of a global 5G network based on heterogeneous networks puts forward new requirements for the architecture of receivers which are determined by the requirements to achieve high data rates, low time delays or use in networks with coordinated multipoint transmission and reception CoMP. To consolidate the knowledge gained the book includes a complete set of materials for online classes including questions and answers, a guide to solving problems for each chapter and computer modeling units of receivers in the MicroCAP environment based on preliminary calculations.
