Crandell,2019 The fuel atomizer of a gas turbine engine is a critical component of study design and manufacture for the gas turbine industry Modern engines rely on consistent precise operation of fuel nozzles to achieve today s progressive emission standards and to keep engines operating longer and to keep them overall more competitive The previous research into this field is extensive but has left a gap where relatively computationally simple methods can be used to benefit companies that build aerospace fuel nozzles Through simulation and experimentation the goal of this research was to create a method of modeling aerospace fuel nozzle flow metering valves that is less computationally intense than complex CFD and generates high resolution information for the design and manufacture of said valves A system was developed in MATLAB and Simulink with the intent of matching the valve system and its outputs to an experimental setup This paper primarily evaluates the simulation methods accuracy experimental methods used and the use of cost analysis for optimization Through experimentation and simulation optimization a relatively accurate simulated system is generated that matches valve stroke and flow output relatively well Cost analysis optimization methods failed to establish accurate results and several theories as to why this happened were generated and discussed Abstract Fuel Level Control Valves and Systems AE-5A Aerospace Fuel, Inerting and Lubrication Sys Committee,2021 A fuel level control valve system controls the quantity of fuel in a tank being filled or emptied on the aircraft This document provides a general familiarization with these mechanisms e g forms they take functions system design considerations This document provides the aircraft fuel system designer with information about these mechanisms devices so that he can prescribe the types of level control valves systems which are best suited for his particular fuel system configuration The scope has been expanded as different aircraft manufacturers may use different type of fuel system architectures Their refueling and defueling systems may take different configurations may require different types of fuel control valves and may require different types of interface with the onboard Fuel Measurement System They must also limit pressure surges and be compatible with ground refueling equipment which have varying surge potentials and create surges This revision to the Fuel Level Control Valve System addresses the addition of more valve technologies and the interface of the refuel valves with the refuel system including the Fuel Quantity Indication System
