

WHAT RIGHTS SHOULD AN ACCUSED PERSON HAVE?

MIRANDA VS. ARIZONA (1966)

got miranda rights?

BACKGROUND:

Police officers try to obtain confessions from suspects. Yet, the Fifth Amendment protects people from self-incrimination—stating facts that will result in their being accused of a crime. The Sixth Amendment gives them the right to an attorney. How these two guaranteed rights come into play when a person is being questioned by police?

The Facts	The Issue	The Decision
• Ernesto Miranda, under questioning by police, confessed that he had kidnapped and assaulted a woman. • Miranda was convicted in state court of the crimes in part because of the confession.	• Miranda claimed the confession should not be used because police had not warned him of his right to avoid self-incrimination or to have a lawyer present.	The Court ruled 5:4 that the conviction should be thrown out because police had violated Miranda's rights when it obtained the confession.

WHY IT MATTERS

The majority based its reasoning on "The necessity for procedures which assure" the protection of the Fifth Amendment rights. It spelled out those procedures:

"Prior to any questioning, the person must be warned that he has a right to remain silent, that any statement he does make may be used as evidence against him, and that he has a right to the presence of an attorney."

That statement is familiar to many Americans from hearing it on television crime dramas. The majority also ruled that people who request a lawyer must be provided with one, even if they are too poor to pay for one themselves.
