Freeland, 1992 This book examines the evolution of American universities during the years following World War II Emphasizing the importance of change at the campus level the book combines a general consideration of national trends with a close study of eight diverse universities in Massachusetts The eight are Harvard M I T Tufts Brandeis Boston University Boston College Northeastern and the University of Massachusetts Broad analytic chapters examine major developments like expansion the rise of graduate education and research the professionalization of the faculty and the decline of general education These chapters also review criticisms of academia that arose in the late 1960s and the fate of various reform proposals during the 1970s Additional chapters focus on the eight campuses to illustrate the forces that drove different kinds of institutions research universities college centered universities urban private universities and public universities in responding to the circumstances of the postwar years Official Gazette of the United States Patent and Trademark Office , 1998 Research Report National Association of Accountants, 1964 Changing Rural Systems In Oman Roderic W Dutton, 2013-01-11 First Published in 1999 Oman in the decades prior to the 1960s was largely isolated from the rest of the world and its changing economies and societies With a limited education little international links small health systems and government under the then Sultan Said bin Taimur Rural communities in northern Oman had very little contact with the Sultan's government which was based in the southern province of Dhofar In a world in which people in most countries including the Gulf States gained at least some benefit from modern education and health services Omani villagers and pastoralists had recourse only to Koranic schools and traditional healers On the other hand however they retained full responsibility for the management of their rural resources on which they depended for their livelihoods and for life itself and had evolved effective communal systems for their development and conservation These were exemplified by regulations governing the protection of trees and by the work of the committees which controlled the traditional falaj water supply network People worked interdependently responding to the contributions made by other members of the rural communities in a system of mutual self reliance They also lived in harmony with their environment in a manner which time had proven to be truly sustainable This volume looks at the changes that occurred after Sultan Qaboos came to power in 1970
