Hurricane Shelters Use Report:

Pilot study on the experiences of hurricane shelter evacuees Laura DiGrande, Lisa Carley-Baxter, Christine Bevc, Suzanne Triplett, Craig William, Lewis-Owen, Jessica Williams, 2019-09-11 Community members who evacuate to shelters may represent the most socially and economically vulnerable group within a hurricane s affected geographic area Disaster research has established associations between socioeconomic conditions and adverse effects but data are overwhelmingly collected retrospectively on large populations and lack further explication As Hurricane Florence approached North Carolina in September 2018 RTI International developed a pilot survey for American Red Cross evacuation shelter clients Two instruments an interviewer led paper questionnaire and a short message service SMS text questionnaire were tested A total of 200 evacuees completed the paper survey but only 34 participated in the SMS text portion of the study Data confirmed that the sample represented very marginalized coastline residents 60 percent were unemployed 70 percent had no family or friends to stay with during evacuation 65 percent could not afford to evacuate to another location 36 percent needed medicine medical care and 11 percent were homeless Although 19 percent of participants had a history of evacuating for prior hurricanes disasters and 14 percent had previously utilized shelters we observed few associations between previous experiences and current evacuation resources behaviors or opinions about safety This study demonstrates that for vulnerable populations exposed to storms of increasing intensity and frequency traditional survey research methods are best employed to learn about their experiences and needs Disaster Preparedness Report ,1986 Large-Scale Evacuation Michael K. Lindell, Pamela Murray-Tuite, Brian Wolshon, Earl J. Baker, 2018-12-07 Large Scale Evacuation introduces the reader to the steps involved in evacuation modelling for towns and cities from understanding the hazards that can require large scale evacuations through understanding how local officials decide to issue evacuation advisories and households decide whether to comply to transportation simulation and traffic management strategies The author team has been recognized internationally for their research and consulting experience in the field of evacuations Collectively they have 125 years of experience in evacuation including more than 140 projects for federal and state agencies The text explains how to model evacuations that use the road transportation network by combining perspectives from social scientists and transportation engineers fields that have commonly approached evacuation modelling from distinctly different perspectives In doing so it offers a step by step guide through the key questions needed to model an evacuation and its impacts to the evacuation route system as well as evacuation management strategies for influencing demand and expanding capacity The authors also demonstrate how to simulate the resulting traffic and evacuation management strategies that can be used to facilitate evacuee movement and reduce unnecessary demand Case studies which identify key points to analyze in an evacuation plan discuss evacuation termination and re entry and highlight challenges that someone developing an evacuation plan or model should expect are also included This textbook will be of interest to researchers practitioners and advanced students
