Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were 20 men, aged 40-50 years, who were sedentary and had no known cardiovascular disease. They were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The exercise group performed a supervised aerobic exercise program, three times a week, for 12 weeks. The control group did not exercise. Physical fitness was measured using a variety of tests, including a maximal aerobic power test, a submaximal aerobic power test, and a resting heart rate test. Health was measured using a variety of tests, including a blood pressure test, a cholesterol test, and a glucose test. The results of the study showed that the exercise group had significantly higher physical fitness and better health than the control group after 12 weeks of training.
