Parliament. House of Commons. Select Committee on Science and Technology,2014 The risks and benefits of participating in screening programmes for conditions and diseases like cancer are not consistently communicated by either the NHS or private health care providers the Science and Technology Committee has warned in a new report It is calling on the Government to ensure that a standardised process to produce screening information is introduced and that better communications training is provided to health care professionals A recently revised breast cancer screening leaflet for the 50 70 age group with its more explicit focus on helping women make an informed choice about whether screening is right for them marks a step in the right direction However the inquiry found that the principles followed to revise this leaflet have not been applied to the communications developed by other NHS screening programmes The Committee recommends that steps are immediately taken by the Government s advisor on screening the UK National Screening Committee UK NSC to devise and implement a standard process for producing information that facilitates informed choice It also recommends a clarification of what informed choice means for potential screening participants so that different screening programmes can be more effectively evaluated on their delivery of it MPs are also calling on the Office for National Statistics to validate the statistics presented in NHS screening information to resolve disagreement and confusion over their accuracy Screening Angela E. Raffle,Anne Mackie,J. A. Muir Gray,2019-06-06 Screening programmes involve the systematic offer of testing for populations or groups of apparently healthy people to identify individuals who may be at future risk of a particular medical condition or disease with the aim of offering intervention to reduce their risk For many years screening was practised without debate and without evidence but in the 1960s serious challenges were raised about many of the screening procedures then being practised Benefits and harms of screening must be measured in high quality trials and the benefits of screening must be weighed alongside the negative side effects Concerns were raised about potential and actual harm arising when people without a health problem received dangerous and unnecessary investigations and treatments as a result of routine screening tests Controversy raged and it took some 50 years to achieve widespread recognition that evidence based and quality assured programme delivery was essential coupled with provision of balanced informed to enable informed choice for potential participants Commercially motivated provision of poor quality and non evidence based screening tests is increasing and screening remains a highly contested topic that has

needs to tackle crucial themes such as research and its application to public health and genomic medicine the authority of the state the right to privacy and the roles and responsibilities of citizens and the State Considering the current fears of a world wide pandemic this book is a timely and insightful exploration of both research possibilities and the role of the state It will help to understand the limits of possible state access to biobanks and data It examines the issue of the possible use of newborn screening programmes by public health authorities It also attempts to understand the protection of individual privacy and the public interest in the promotion of health and the prevention of disease Moreover do citizens have a say Will public attitudes be different towards research in public health genomics compared to genetic testing Health Care Needs Assessment James Raftery,Jonathan Mant,Sue Simpson,2004 Providing vital updates this two volume set describes the central role and aim of health care needs assessment in the NHS health care reforms and explains the epidemiological approach to needs assessment and the effectiveness and availability of services Public Health Ethics Stephen Holland,2015-01-20 How far should we go in protecting and promoting public health Can we force people to give up unhealthy habits and make healthier choices Should we stop treating smokers who refuse to give up smoking for example or put a tax on fatty foods and ban vending machines in schools to address the obesity epidemic Or can we nudge people towards healthy options without compromising their freedom to choose Such questions are at the heart of public health ethics In this second edition of his well respected textbook Stephen Holland shows that to understand and debate these issues requires philosophy moral philosophies including utilitarianism and deontology as well as political philosophies such as liberalism and communitarianism And philosophy informs other aspects of public health such as epidemiology health promotion and screening The new edition has been fully revised and updated to reflect recent developments in the field There is a new chapter on the ethics of harm reduction looking at policies which aim to reduce the harmful effects of unhealthy behaviour such as using illicit drugs as opposed to trying to get people to abstain Additional material has been added on the recent interest in nudging people towards more healthy choices in a new theoretical section on libertarian paternalism as well as more on debates on the ethics of other current public health policies such as using financial incentives to get people to take more responsibility for their own health Public Health Ethics provides a lively accessible and philosophically informed introduction to such issues As well as being an ideal textbook for students taking courses in public health ethics Holland s systematic discussion of the ethics of public health will engage and inform the more advanced reader too Essential Public Health Liam J.
