

ENDOCRINE SYSTEM

Endocrine System: WORKING TOGETHER

Each organ system works on other systems within the body to do its "job". See below to learn just some of the ways that the endocrine system interacts with other organ systems.

Nervous System

Circulatory System

Endocrine System: FACTS

Endocrine System: PROBLEMS

Most of the time, the endocrine system works perfectly well. However, sometimes problems can arise.

Diabetes

Diabetes is a condition that causes high blood glucose (sugar) levels. It is caused by the body being unable to either produce or use the hormone insulin. So, the glucose (sugar) gets stuck in the blood. Symptoms include increased thirst, weight loss, frequent urination, blurred vision, slow wound healing, and frequent weight changes, persistent acne, rashes, or itching in the hands.

Endocrine System: KEY TERMS

Term	Definition
Endocrine System	Network of endocrine glands that make, store, and release hormones.
Hormones	Chemical messengers that carry information and instructions from one cell to another.

Endocrine System: HORMONES

Hormones are chemical signals. Hormones are released by a gland into the bloodstream. They travel through the bloodstream and bind to target cells that have receptors for that hormone. This causes a change in the target cell's function.

Endocrine System: FIGHT-OR-FLIGHT

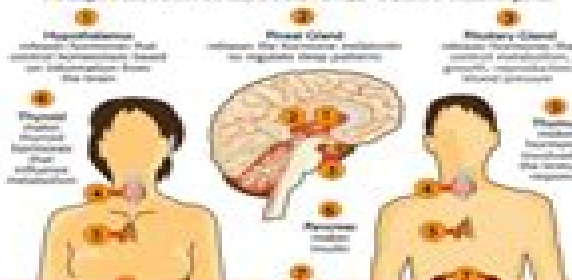

The fight-or-flight response is a reaction that occurs in the body when we are really frightened. The brain (specifically the hypothalamus) sends out signals to the adrenal glands to release hormones that increase heart rate, blood pressure, and energy levels in order to help us deal with the situation. The fight-or-flight response is triggered by the release of hormones that prepare the body to either run or fight when we are in danger.

In addition, the body's response to stress prepares us to deal with the danger. So, we are not startled, but we are ready to deal with it. The diagram shows the hormones that are released and the effect they have on the body.

Endocrine System: GLANDS

A gland is a structure that produces and releases substances that perform a specific function in the body. There are two types of glands: exocrine glands and endocrine glands. Exocrine glands release their products into a duct, while endocrine glands release their products directly into the bloodstream. The diagram shows the location and function of several major endocrine glands.

Endocrine System: FEEDBACK LOOPS

Endocrine activities are regulated by complex feedback loops. These feedback loops help the body maintain a balance of hormones. When a hormone level is too high or too low, the body sends a signal to the glands to either produce more or less of that hormone. The diagram shows how a feedback loop works.

The glands react to hormone changes in the blood in the same way. The glands only release enough hormone to bring the blood levels back to normal. If there is too much hormone, the glands stop producing it for a while. Feedback loops are important for the body to stay healthy.

Not all blood sugar changes are caused by the hormones insulin and glucagon. In some cases, the body can use other ways to maintain blood sugar levels. For example, the liver can store glucose and release it when needed. The diagram shows how the liver helps maintain blood sugar levels.
