R. Kent, 2014-06-27 What do educated urban people think about God and why? What factors—logical, emotional, experiential, or intuitive—incline them towards belief or towards unbelief? How do they balance these factors? Why do many seem to be swing voters comfortable sitting on the fence, unmotivated to move far either way? What common ground do they share with Christianity? What are their objections to Christian belief and practice and their misunderstandings? Why do many people describe intuitive and emotional attraction to believing in God but resist it intellectually? What apologetic approaches would make most sense specifically to educated urban Australians? What media products do they enjoy and trust? And how should these insights influence apologetics? Grenville Kent asks these questions in one Australian demographic to help target Big Questions, a documentary film series for Christian apologetics Anyone interested in apologetics, evangelical media, and the application of marketing research to evangelism will be interested in this study Inside Television Ned White, 1980

Food and Eating in America James C. Giesen, Bryant Simon, 2018-02-26. Guides students through a rich menu of American history through food and eating. This book features a wide and diverse range of primary sources covering the cultivation, preparation, marketing, and consumption of food from the time before Europeans arrived in North America to the present day United States. It is organized around what the authors label the Four P's: production, politics, price, and preference, in order to show readers that food represents something more than nutrition and the daily meals that keep us alive. The documents in this book demonstrate that food we eat is a highly condensed social fact that both reflects and is shaped by politics, economics, culture, religion, region, race, class, and gender. Food and Eating in America covers more than 500 years of American food and eating history with sections on: An Appetizer: What Food and Eating Tell Us About America; Hunting, Harvesting, Starving, and the Occasional Feast; Food in Early America; Fields and Foods in the Nineteenth Century; Feeding a Modern World; Revolutions in Farming; Food and Famine; and Counterculture.
