Exercise Physiology Philippe Connes, Olivier Hue (Ph.D), Stéphane Perrey, 2010 There is no doubt that if the field of exercise physiology is to make further advancements, the various specialized areas must work together in solving the unique and difficult problems of understanding how exercise is initiated, maintained, and regulated at many functional levels and what causes us to quit. Exercise is perhaps the most complex of physiological functions requiring the coordinated, integrated activation of essentially every cell, tissue, and organ in the body. Such activation is known to take place at all levels from molecular to systemic. Focusing on important issues addressed at cellular and systemic levels, this handbook presents state-of-the-art research in the field of exercise physiology. Each chapter serves as a comprehensive resource that will stimulate and challenge discussion in advanced students, researchers, physiologists, medical doctors, and practitioners. Authored by respected exercise physiologists from nineteen countries, each chapter has been significantly updated to provide up-to-date coverage of the topics and to offer complete descriptions of the many facets of the most physiological responses from a cellular to an integrative approach within individual body systems in normal and disease states and includes some chapters that are rarely addressed in exercise physiology books such as the influence of exercise on endothelium, vasomotor control, mechanisms of coagulation, immune function, and rheological properties of blood and their influence on hemodynamics. This book represents the first iteration to provide such a work. Normal exercise responses divided into muscle function.

bioenergetics and respiratory cardiac and blood vascular function Fitness training exercise testing and limits to exercise Exercise responses in different environments Beneficial effects of exercise rehabilitation on ageing and in the prevention and treatment of disease states Rarely addressed issues such as the influence of exercise on endothelium vasomotor control
