

MAGNETO

The XR-750 is fitted with a new type of Magneto. The unit is manufactured, as in the past, by Fairbanks-Morse and differs from previous units in construction details and operation. This new magneto fires each cylinder independent of the other cylinder. The condenser is now mounted on the outside of the body casting and is held in place with two straps. The magneto cap is of a different design to accommodate the new distributor rotor and two spark plug leads. The cap is also located on the body casting with dowel pins, and care must be taken to remove the cap off of the dowel pins. Do not strike the cap with hammer from the side since this will break the cap. When servicing the magneto, care must be taken to prevent breakage of the rotor. If during service the rotor becomes loose, be aware that the rotor be bonded to the shaft with a drop of H-D SuperBonder P/N 99829-77.

We would also suggest that since there is no rubber boot over the spark plug leads exiting from the cap, that you use silicone sealer to prevent corrosion in this area. Furthermore, on some race tracks that have an abrasive surface, fabricate a plastic shield to help prevent any damage to the magneto external wiring and condenser. These shields are normally tie-wrapped to the front down tubes just in front of the magneto.

CARBURETOR

The Mikuni carburetors supplied with your motorcycle are jetted for average conditions. Your engine will require at the least main jet changes for optimum performance under various racing conditions. The following is a listing of the standard jetting and a description of their functions.

Air Correction Jet (1.0 Standard)

The air correction jet is used for fine tuning the mixture changes of the main jet and is changed when air temperature changes. The larger the jet number the leaner the mixture.

Main Jet (240 Standard)

The main jet controls open throttle operation. The main jet is changed to allow for changes in the barometric pressure. The larger the jet number the richer the mixture.

Air Screw

The air screw is used for setting idle mixture. The further the screw is backed out, the leaner the mixture.

Pilot Jet

(25 Standard)

The pilot jet is used for setting idle mixture. The larger the jet number, the richer the mixture.

Throttle Valve or Slide

(2.0 Cutaway Standard)

The throttle valve cutaway controls the mixture up to 1/4 throttle opening. The larger the throttle valve cutaway the leaner the mixture.

Needle Jet

(159-P4 Standard)

The needle jet controls the mixture from 1/4 to 3/4 throttle opening. The larger the needle jet number the richer the mixture.

Jet Needle

(6F5 Standard)

The jet needle fine tunes the mixture of the needle jet. The sharper the taper angle, the richer the mixture.
