Patrick J. Knapp,2021-04-21 Currently there are at least four major identifiable perspectives on how people best understand and recover from religious abuse Both secular and faith based Christian adherents can be variously identified in each of these approaches This book examines these viewpoints and evaluates their various strengths and limitations It concludes that each perspective is helpful to the extent possible given the limitations of its respective philosophic or theological assumptions This book summarizes each viewpoint and suggests a larger contextual perspective helpful to better understand involvement in and recovery from religiously abusive environments The conclusion is an integration of the various conceptual frameworks and a different model SECURE is described that includes essential principles and practical strategies necessary for recovery from religious abuse Suggestions are made for future research and study both for academics with interest in the cultic studies and counseling fields and for various people negatively affected by religious abuse and in need of recovery of compelling problems for theistic philosophers The problems pertain to three types of theistic philosopher which Lovering defines here as theistic inferentialists theistic non inferentialists and theistic fideists Theistic inferentialists believe that God exists that there is inferential probabilifying evidence of God s existence and that this evidence is discoverable not simply in principle but in practice Theistic non inferentialists believe that God exists that there is non inferential probabilifying evidence of God's existence and that this evidence is discoverable not simply in principle but in practice Theistic fideists believe that God exists that there is no discoverable probabilifying evidence inferential or non inferential of God's existence and that it is nevertheless acceptable morally if not otherwise to have faith that God exists Lovering argues that each type of theistic philosopher faces a problem unique to his type and that they all share two particular problems Some of these problems take us down an entirely new discursive path others down a new discursive path branching off from an old one

The Black Book Richard A. Jones, 2013-11-26. The Black Book Wittgenstein and Race attempts to highlight the importance of Ludwig Wittgenstein's work for contemporary African American and Africana philosophy. Richard A. Jones argues that Wittgenstein's early Tractarian views on logical atomism and his later more holistic views from his work Philosophical Investigations are exceedingly relevant to African American philosophy. The Black Book investigates the epistemic, linguistic, and political grounds from which inspiration might be drawn. Ultimately, as philosophy attempts to redefine itself in a postmodern discourse where it has been deigned, concluded, it is the awe for the ordinary that Wittgenstein inspires and that should re-inspire the creative imaginary in Africana thought. The Black Book is an attempt to show that Wittgenstein's work continues to be important not only for African American philosophers but for all philosophers.

On Reasoning and Argument David Hitchcock, 2017-04-06. This book brings together in one place David Hitchcock's most significant published articles on reasoning and argument. In seven new chapters, he updates his thinking in the light of subsequent scholarship. Collectively, the papers articulate a distinctive position in the philosophy of argumentation. Among other things, the author develops an account of material consequence that permits evaluation of inferences without problematic postulation of unstated premises; updates his recursive definition of argument that accommodates chaining and embedding of arguments and allows any type of illocutionary act to be a conclusion; advances a general theory of relevance; provides comprehensive frameworks for evaluating inferences in reasoning by analogy, means-end reasoning, and appeals to considerations or criteria; argues that none of the forms of arguing ad hominem is a fallacy; describes proven methods of teaching critical thinking effectively.

Faith, Hope, and Love in the Kingdom of God Robert Hernan Cubillos, 2017-04-27. We live in a world full of challenges. The three graces can almost be seen as motors for Christian life in today's world, but the words faith, hope, and love have so many everyday uses that their technical theological meanings are for many difficult to appreciate. Modern life also leaves many yearning for authenticity and meaning. Many religions have answered that need by calling to mind the image of a path. Always profound progressions, religious paths tend to be motivated either by practices, the act of walking the path, or focal points. Christianity has a focal point, an object, and it sees the three graces as distinctively content-filled. The heart of this book is about helping people find the Christian path and their intellectual, emotional, and spiritual balance, an equilibrium that is sustained by a strong personal faith, an enduring hope for the future, and genuine love that will withstand the worst of times. It contributes to the category of Christian literature that provides a pattern for Christian living without surrendering the intellect to the more popular side of this genre.

Logic as a Liberal Art R. E. Houser, 2019-12-10. In the twenty-first century, there are two ways to study logic. The more recent approach is symbolic logic.

The history of teaching logic since World War II however casts doubt on the idea that symbolic logic is best for a first logic course. Logic as a Liberal Art is designed as part of a minority approach teaching logic in the verbal way in the student's natural language the approach invented by Aristotle. On utilitarian grounds alone this verbal approach is superior for a first course in logic for the whole range of students. For millennia this verbal approach to logic was taught in conjunction with grammar and rhetoric christened the trivium. The decline in teaching grammar and rhetoric in American secondary schools has led Dr. Rollen Edward Houser to develop this book. The first part treats grammar, rhetoric and the essential nature of logic. Those teachers who look down upon rhetoric are free of course to skip those lessons. The treatment of logic itself follows Aristotle's division of the three acts of the mind. Prior Analytics 1.1. Formal logic is then taken up in Aristotle's order with Parts on the logic of Terms, Propositions and Arguments. The emphasis in Logic as a Liberal Art is on learning logic through doing problems. Consequently there are more problems in each lesson than would be found for example in many textbooks. In addition a special effort has been made to have easy, medium and difficult problems in each Problem Set. In this way the problem sets are designed to offer a challenge to all students from those most in need of a logic course to the very best students.

Uncertainty in Pharmacology Adam LaCaze, Barbara Osimani, 2020-02-20. This volume covers a wide range of topics concerning methodological, epistemological and regulatory ethical issues around pharmacology. The book focuses in particular on the diverse sources of uncertainty, the different kinds of uncertainty that there are and the diverse ways in which these uncertainties are or could be addressed. Compared with the more basic sciences such as chemistry or biology, pharmacology works across diverse observable levels of reality although the first step in the causal chain leading to the therapeutic outcome takes place at the biochemical level, the end effect is a clinically observable result which is influenced not only by biological actions but also psychological and social phenomena. Issues of causality and evidence must be treated with these specific aspects in mind. In covering these issues the book opens up a common domain of investigation which intersects the deeply intertwined dimensions of pharmacological research, pharmaceutical regulation and the related economic environment. The book is a collective endeavour with in-depth contributions from experts in pharmacology, philosophy of medicine, statistics, scientific methodology, formal and social epistemology working in constant dialogue across disciplinary boundaries.
