

1. Introduction The purpose of this study is to investigate the effects of various factors on the performance of a system. The study is organized as follows: Section 2 describes the system architecture and the experimental setup. Section 3 presents the results of the experiments. Section 4 discusses the implications of the results. Section 5 concludes the study.	2. System Architecture and Experimental Setup The system architecture is shown in Figure 1. The system consists of a client and a server. The client is a personal computer with a 100 MHz processor and 64 MB of RAM. The server is a 386 processor with 16 MB of RAM. The system is connected to a local area network. The experimental setup is described in Table 1.	3. Results The results of the experiments are shown in Table 2. The table shows the performance of the system for different values of the parameters. The performance is measured in terms of the number of requests per second. The results show that the performance of the system is affected by the number of requests and the number of servers.
