Wartime House Mike Brown, Carol Harris, 2005-10-31. What was it like to live in Britain during the Second World War? What kind of house did the average family live in? How did people cope with the ever-present threat of air raids, not to mention the hardship of food and clothes rationing? How was a typical suburban home built? What were the choices open to householders when it came to interior decoration and furnishing? How did the war affect the domestic routines of an average household? The demands of a nation at war had many other far-reaching effects on the average home. How did women cope with bringing up a family single-handedly after their husbands were conscripted for military service? How did they use the rations and keep up their families' spirits? What was it like to Make do and Mend, or Dig for Victory, or to sleep in an Anderson shelter? By looking at the lives of ordinary people who inhabited the semi-detached world of suburbia, Mike Brown and Carol Harris have painted a vivid picture of daily life on the Home Front in wartime Britain. Mrs Beeton and Mrs Marshall

While Isabella Beeton compiled one successful book of collected recipes, Agnes built a cookery empire including a training school, the development of innovative kitchen equipment, a range of cooking ingredients, an employment agency, and a successful weekly journal, as well as writing three incredibly popular recipe books. Mrs Beeton and Mrs Marshall: A Tale of Two Victorian Cooks intrudes on the private lives of both these women, whose careers eclipsed two very different halves of the Victorian era. While there are similarities between the two, their narratives explore class and background, highlight the social and economic contrasts of the nineteenth century, the ascension of the cookery industry in
