

Installing the Gauge

The AEM Tru Boost boost controller gauge requires a standard 2 1/16" (52MM) mounting hole and can be mounted in a flat panel or most standard gauge pods. The included cable contains two wire bundles and a 5-pin connector. The 5-pin connector connects to a mating 5-pin connector on the back of the gauge. See Figure 2. Connect the black and red wires in the long 2-wire bundle to the leads from the boost solenoid. Polarity does not matter. Connect the black wire from the 5-wire bundle to a good ground. Connect the 2 red wires to a fused, switched, +12Vdc power source. The gray wire is an optional low side driver output. The orange wire is an optional scramble boost input. The orange and gray wires do not need to be connected for the gauge to function.

The boost hose protruding from the back of the gauge is connected to the on-board pressure sensor. See Figure 3. When using the on-board pressure sensor, the boost hose must be connected to manifold pressure. Connect the boost hose to manifold pressure using the supplied tubing and 1/8" NPT barb or an existing manifold pressure port. (NOTE: Do not pull on the boost hose) See Figure 4 for a connection diagram.
