

Boat Performance

Boat Acceleration

WARNING

A tight grip on the steering wheel while handle is always essential and is required when accelerating. Accelerating or when slowing the boat, the handle with Power Trim, when slowing moving speed, the outboard should be moved to either a forward or down position. When slowing moving boats will vary and will put in one direction until a balanced condition has been attained. If the outboard is allowed past the full-speed steering condition, the steering wheel while handle then will have a tendency to put in the opposite direction. Excessive slowing past the balanced steering position will result in increased steering loads, and in most boat applications, a decrease in performance.

CAUTION

When slowing boat with dual outboards, both outboards should be at approximately the same tilt angle and be about out until substantially the present boat trim position (side-to-side) with desired boat attitude is achieved. Outboards can then be returned individually to precisely adjust boat trim angle and pitch.

1. With boat in water, with the outboard(s) trim button, to remote control handle(s) so that the outboard on the side of boat is horizontal. This is a typical average setting that should give reasonable acceleration and top speed.
2. Do for a short familiarization run of various throttle and trim settings BEFORE starting testing.

NOTE: Instruments should be read with eye directly in front to eliminate any error in reading the instruments.

3. When making either top speed or acceleration runs, best accuracy will be obtained by running with or against any wind. Side winds require driving at a constant turn to keep the boat moving straight-ahead. If winds are 10 MPH (16 km/hr) or greater, it is suggested that all acceleration runs be made downwind.

* WOT is wide-open-throttle

4. Use the speed boat (wide-open-throttle) run should be kept with the boat typically facing in direction of wind coming outboard. (Downwind or upwind WOT runs should never depend on position of the outboard(s) but always depend on position of the Operator and Manufacturer Manual.)

NOTE: When performing an acceleration test, it is recommended that a dual watch be used to measure water direction. A dual watch with a second hand can also be substituted.

5. An acceleration test can also be performed if desired. When the boat with dual outboards is in the water and instruments are ready, it should be moved to WOT as the handle is quickly pushed to start full-throttle position. When the boat is in the water, power trim(s) should be set to WOT (downward). Second run should be made to assure a good average.
6. Prior "break loose" (outboard higher RPM), if not mentioned, in some cases can be observed during acceleration. If noticeable "break loose" occurs, it can be decreased by trimming the outboard handle(s) up. If it remains excessive with all trimmer position, the outboard must be serviced.
7. It is suggested that all appropriate data be recorded on a sheet (such as that illustrated, following) and retained for future reference.
8. After several propellers of different pitch and/or design have been tried, select one that best serves the general purpose of the boat. The selected propeller should enable the engine to operate within its recommended full throttle RPM range, without excessive propeller "break loose" during acceleration or RPM. A second propeller that would make both a reliable spare or a special purpose alternate might also be desirable.

NOTE: A higher pitch often gives best top speed, but the best lower pitch gives adequate top speed with much better acceleration.
