If you work out the latitudinal and longitudinal extent of India, they are roughly about 30 degrees, whereas the actual distance measured from north to south extremity is 3,214 km, and that from east to west is only 2,933 km.

This difference is based on the fact that the distance between two longitudes decreases towards the poles whereas the distance between two latitudes remains the same everywhere.

From the values of latitude, it is understood that the southern part of the country lies within the tropics and the northern part lies in the sub-tropical zone or the warm temperate zone. This location is responsible for large variations in land forms, climate, soil types and natural vegetation in the country.

Now, let us observe the longitudinal extent and its implications on the Indian people. From the values of longitude, it is quite discernible that there is a variation of nearly 30 degrees, which causes a time difference of nearly two hours between the easternmost and the westernmost parts of our country.

A) How the distance between latitude and longitude varies from equator to poles?

B) What types of variations are caused due to large latitudinal extension?

C) What is the local time interval between Gujarat and Arunachal Pradesh?

When first published this book was one of the first collections of empirical research in the area of the knowledge transmitted in schools and the responses of students to it It includes studies of the histories of particular school subjects and of how the knowledge they embody is presented in the classroom Attention is also given to the effects of gender stereotypes among teachers and pupils both on pupils selection of courses to study and on their reactions to particular subjects in the classroom The other major topic in this collection is the way external examinations shape the nature of the school curriculum and how it is taught There are studies of how pupils and teachers adapt to the exam system and of how that system and its role in the accountability of schools have changed in recent years The articles collected here throw into relief important aspects of what is taught in schools and they do this on the basis of a solid foundation of empirical research
