"I Have A Dream" Analysis

"We will not be satisfied until justice rolls down like waters and righteousness like a mighty stream," Martin Luther King Jr., I Have a Dream. "Injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere. We are caught in an inescapable network of mutuality, tied in a single garment of destiny. Whatever affects one directly, affects all indirectly." Martin Luther King Jr., Letter from the Birmingham Jail. Two very different quotes with different tones and use of figurative language from the same person. Martin Luther King Jr. has written many forms of literature, but the difference in tone, rhetorical appeals, the figurative language used and overall structure between the Letter from Birmingham jail and the "I Have a Dream" speech is remarkable.

On August 28, 1963, Martin Luther King Jr. what is arguably the most famous speech of the 20th century. In his speech, he switches from light to dark tones using words and phrases, such as "momentous" and "beacon of light" for a hopeful tone, but then switches to a darker tone with words like "seared in the flames of withering injustice." Even though he moves from light to dark imagery he does stir away from the promise of a better future. His words are meant to move the hearts of others in a non-violent demonstration. the Letter from Birmingham jail has a more calm and peaceful tone, he expresses his thoughts and emotions successfully to the readers in this way. "I must confess that over the last few years I have been gravely disappointed with the white moderate," you can tell he is trying to keep the tone as calm as he can to avoid trouble and to clearly state he is trying to do this movement non-violently.

In the "I Have a Dream" speech Martin Luther King Jr. uses ethos at the beginning of the speech "Five score years ago, a great American, in whose symbolic shadow we stand today, signed the Emancipation Proclamation." By using a president that everyone looks up to makes the people believe they are fighting for the same reason. He says "Now is the time to lift our nation from the quicksands of racial justice to the solid rock of brotherhood." Repeatedly he says "now is the time," he conveys pathos because it empowers the audience into believing its time to take action. He later emphasizes that there will be no peace in this country till black people get their rights, this is him conveying pathos again as it makes the audience determined to work hard to have their rights granted to them. Martin Luther King Jr. uses ethos and pathos more than logos, he is trying to emotionally move the people into supporting the civil rights movement. In the Letter from Birmingham Jail Martin Luther King Jr. uses logos more than anything. He is trying to convince a "fellow clergyman" to understand and support the civil rights movement along with defending his actions. One main point he constantly makes is that just laws should be followed and unjust laws shouldn

Cao, 2019-02-19 In most cases the higher something costs the more value and importance people put on an item like a house a car a computer a cell phone or in this case a book If I were the one to determine the sales price of my book I would sell it for at least 85 to 110 to limit the number of people from reading my book The reason is that people mostly likely will value an expensive book more than a book that is less than 25 Unfortunately I am not in the position to decide the selling price of my book To be honest I actually don't need too many people to read my book so that it is not saturated and people who read my book will appreciate the knowledge that they receive from my book Regardless whether people value the importance of my book or not as far as I am concerned the knowledge that I have written down is the backbone and the essence of my well being today I would not have the strength or stamina to write this book without the knowledge that I have It enables me to go on with my life I am more energetic and more productive now than I was before I want to see people live a life full of vitality and energy Did you ever find yourself lacking the drive strength and stamina to continue your day in the past Do you want to get the fire energy power and enjoyment back in your life If you do you have come to the right place You have the energy and the potential in you You just don't know it yet Once you receive the knowledge you will know it for the rest of your life The Dream Singer euhal allen, Essential Papers on Character Neurosis & Treatment Ruth
