The African Book Publishing Record ,2007     Global Agricultural Trade and Developing Countries M. Ataman Aksoy,John C. Beghin,2004-11-01 Global Agricultural Trade and Developing Countries presents research findings based on a series of commodity studies of significant economic importance to developing countries The book sets the stage with background chapters and investigations of cross cutting issues It then describes trade and domestic policy regimes affecting agricultural and food markets and assesses the resulting patterns of production and trade The book continues with an analysis of product standards and costs of compliance and their effects on agricultural and food trade The book also investigates the impact of preferences given to selected countries and their effectiveness then reviews the evidence on the attempts to decouple agricultural support from agricultural output The last background chapter explores the robustness of the global gains of multilateral agricultural and food trade liberalization Given this context the book presents detailed commodity studies for coffee cotton dairy fruits and vegetables groundnuts rice seafood products sugar and wheat These markets feature distorted policy regimes among industrial or middle income countries The studies analyze current policy regimes in key producing and consuming countries document the magnitude of these distortions and estimate the distributional impacts winners and losers of trade and domestic policy reforms By bringing the key issues and findings together in one place Global Agricultural Trade and Developing Countries aids policy makers and researchers both in their approach to global negotiations and in evaluating their domestic policies on agriculture The book also complements the recently published Agriculture and the WTO which focuses primarily on the agricultural issues within the context of the WTO negotiations

Government Reports Announcements & Index ,1989      The Structural Prevention of Mass Atrocities
Stephen McLoughlin,2014-07-17 This book offers a different approach to the structural prevention of mass atrocities It investigates the conditions that enable vulnerable countries to prevent the perpetration of such violence Structural prevention is commonly framed as the identifying and ameliorating of the root causes of violent conflict a process which typically involves international actors determining what these root causes are and what the best courses of action are to deal with them This overlooks why mass atrocities do not occur in countries that contain the presence of root causes In fact very little research has been conducted on what the causes of peace and stability are particularly in relatively countries located in regions marred by civil war and mass atrocities To better understand how such vulnerable countries prevent the commission of mass atrocities this book proposes an analytical framework which enables not only an understanding of risk which arises from the presence of root causes but also of the factors that build resilience in countries and consequently mitigate and manage such risk Using this framework three countries Botswana Zambia and Tanzania are analysed to account for their long term stability despite their location in neighbourhoods characterised by decades of civil war ethnic repression and mass atrocities This work is a significant contribution to the field of genocide studies and crimes against humanity and will be of interest to students and scholars alike
