

Ethnogeography: A Future for Primary Geography and Primary Geography Research?

Fran Martin

Senior Lecturer in Primary Education, University College Worcester

A common theme of the papers presented in this forum is that of the importance of listening to children's voices. The key messages conveyed by the authors are synthesised in this paper and the implications for the development of the subject and research within it are considered. This is then placed in the context of some recent doctoral research that draws on beginning teachers' voices and proposes a new way of conceptualising primary geography – ethnogeography – that might set an agenda for the future development and direction of primary geography research.

Keywords: children, voices, curriculum, perceptions, ethnogeography, imagination

Children's Voices

In the opening paper Catling puts forward a compelling argument for listening to children's voices, raising issues for the development of primary geography research that can be summarised under four broad headings:

- teaching for learning;
- resources;
- the curriculum;
- the future of the subject.

The first three will be examined briefly, drawing on the key messages conveyed by the authors in this publication, and an initial agenda for future research will be identified. The remainder of the paper will examine the subject issue in greater depth, drawing on some recent doctoral research into beginning teachers' development as teachers of primary geography.

Teaching for learning

As part of the agenda of building on 'where children are' it is crucial for us to identify their current levels of knowledge, understanding, skills and attitudes. In terms of children's conceptions and misconceptions of the physical world, Mackintosh and Halocho demonstrate the need for teachers to elicit children's alternative frameworks about rivers and coastal processes. Mackintosh goes on to suggest that teachers can use this information to take a bottom-up approach to progression in learning that uses concept ladders, rather than the more traditional top-down approach which focuses on progression in teaching. Halocho, Mackintosh and Owens stress the importance of outdoor learning as a key element in

A Research Agenda for Tourism Geographies Dieter K. Müller, 2019 In recent years tourism geographies have developed into a vibrant field of research at the intersection of geography and tourism studies The book presents a unique collection of individual research agendas aiming to inspire the pursuit of new avenues of research Although there have been arguments to apply post disciplinary perspectives within tourism research this book highlights the interest and potential of tourism geographers to contribute to a geographical tradition and influence the future content of geography as a discipline

Pedagogic Research in Geography Higher Education Martin Haigh, Debby Cotton, Tim Hall, 2017-10-02 There are many books about teaching in Geography but this is the first dealing specifically with Pedagogic Research its methods and practices Pedagogy research concerns the processes of learning and the development of learners It is a learner centred activity that aims to evaluate and improve the ways that students learn and learn to manage control and comprehend their own learning processes first as Geographers in Higher Education but equally as future educated citizens This book collects together some key research papers from the Journal of Geography in Higher Education They concern original research and critical perspectives on how Geographers learn critical evaluations of both new and traditional frameworks and methods used for Pedagogic research in Geography and some case studies on the promotion of self authorship learner autonomy in key Geography Higher Education contexts such as fieldwork and undergraduate project work This book is a compilation of articles from various issues of the Journal of Geography in Higher Education Research Paper, 1980

U.S. Geological Survey Professional Paper ,1984 Environmental Effect Gilbert F. White,2019-04-10 In our critical attempts to solve the pressing current problems of a limited water supply it is essential that we act always with a global view to the future Recognizing this an international group of scholars from the Soviet Union Canada Africa and the United States met to review together their experiences and research on the environmental effects of a number of large scale river management programs This edited collection of their reports provides a balanced view of a vital element in the total ecosystem Their analysis points out the urgent need to take account of long term trends in climate to consider all feasible management alternatives and especially to manage demand as opposed to simply increasing water supply and to defer irreversible action until all environmental impacts are estimated Natural Hazard Management in Coastal Areas ,1976

Retail and Commercial Planning (RLE Retailing and Distribution) Ross Davies,2012-10-02 Changes in the philosophy of planning and the political influences behind it have led to an increasingly ambivalent approach to retail and commercial matters and a lack of clear goals and objectives as to what both central government and the local authorities should be concerned with At the same time changes within the distribution industry have brought new pressures to bear upon the environment which the conventional planning process seems ill equipped to accommodate This book by an established leading authority takes stock of the new problems to be confronted and provides the rudiments of an alternative planning approach to dealing with them It begins by examining the growth of office blocks and shopping centres and goes on to analyse and criticise the existing planning processes suggesting alternative procedures It looks at the dual needs of development on the one hand and renovation and redevelopment on the other and discusses how these should be dealt with in the future More specific problems are also examined the impact created by new shopping schemes the decline of small shops and related activities the conflict over transport demands and provisions and the special physical needs of particular urban and rural environments Throughout the argument is supported by detailed examples of particular developments

Dale Jamieson, 2014-02-28 From the 1992 Rio Earth Summit to the 2009 Copenhagen Climate Conference there was a concerted international effort to stop climate change Yet greenhouse gas emissions increased atmospheric concentrations grew and global warming became an observable fact of life In this book philosopher Dale Jamieson explains what climate change is why we have failed to stop it and why it still matters what we do Centered in philosophy the volume also treats the scientific historical economic and political dimensions of climate change Our failure to prevent or even to respond significantly to climate change Jamieson argues reflects the impoverishment of our systems of practical reason the paralysis of our politics and the limits of our cognitive and affective capacities The climate change that is underway is remaking the world in such a way that familiar comforts places and ways of life will disappear in years or decades rather than centuries Climate change also threatens our sense of meaning since it is difficult to believe that our individual actions matter The challenges that climate change presents go beyond the resources of common sense morality it can be hard to view such everyday acts as driving and flying as presenting moral problems Yet there is much that we can do to slow climate change to adapt to it and restore a sense of agency while living meaningful lives in a changing world U.S. Geological Survey Professional Paper Bruce Molnia,1984 Environmental Quality in a Growing Economy Henry Jarrett,2013-10-18 Twelve scholars examine some leading problems in environmental quality analyze present situations and future prospects and suggest what might be done about them Originally published in 1966
