Muscle Split Pin Activity:

Implant System for the Recording of Internal Muscle Activity to Control a Hand Prosthesis Lait Abu Saleh, 2015-12-18 An implantable system to invasively acquire muscle activity for controlling a bionic hand prosthesis is presented. The system utilizes two wireless interfaces for data and power transmission. Furthermore, a multichannel custom-made low power application specific integrated circuit ASIC was designed in 130 nm technology to amplify, filter, and digitize the analogue muscle activity. A trade off between power consumption, silicon area, and noise was considered during the design phase. The implant system was successfully tested by several animal experiments: sheep and rhesus macaques. The invasively recorded muscle activity possesses a higher amplitude, higher selectivity, and more stability than its surface recorded counterpart. It provides an opportunity for simple and smooth control of a hand prosthetic system with a high number of degrees of freedom.
