

the ANATOMY of a GAS GRILL PARTS GUIDE

Grease Tray

Grease trays and cups collect excess grease and drippings which are a byproduct of the cooking process. It is important to regularly empty the grease tray to prevent it from overflowing.

Side Burner

Side burners are built in to the side shelves of some grills and are great for preparing side dishes and sauces, allowing for the whole meal to be prepared on the grill.

Heat Plates

Heat plates minimize flare ups and extend the life of your grill burners by incinerating drippings and channeling excess grease away from the burners.

Burner

Burners are one of the most important parts of your grill because they are the primary source of heat for grilling food. Over time, burners can accumulate grease and food particles causing inconsistent temperatures and uneven flames.

Temperature Gauge

The temperature gauge measures the temperature inside your grill, which enables more precise cooking to be done.

Warming Rack

The warming rack helps to keep cooked food warm while freeing up space for more food to be cooked on the grill. It's also great for warming buns.

Cooking Grate

Cooking grates are the workhorse of your grill. They are exposed to the most wear and tear of any part on your barbecue and for that reason require regular care and maintenance such as cleaning and seasoning.

Igniter

Igniters are the ignition source for your grill. If your igniter is not working check that the battery is good and that the electrodes are connected or not damaged.

Control Knobs

Control knobs allow you to adjust the flow of gas to the burners determining both the flame height and overall cooking temperature of your grill.

Carryover Tubes

Carryover tubes link the burners and "carry" the flame from burner to the next when lighting the grill.

ESSENTIAL GRILLING ACCESSORIES

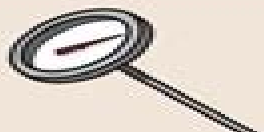

Basting Brushes

Barbecue grill basting brushes are the easiest way to apply sauces and marinades to grilled meats.

Grill Covers

Protect your barbecue from the elements. When not in use be sure to keep your grill covered.

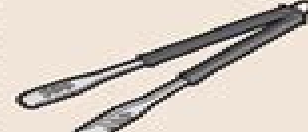

Meat Thermometers

Take the guesswork out of grilling by measuring the temperature of your meat to ensure doneness.

Spatulas

Turns and flips small to large portion food with ease. Essential for when grilling burgers.

Tongs

Pick up, hold and flip food. Great for steaks, ribs and chicken.
