James,2008-02-04 With the recent completion of the sequencing of the human genome it is widely anticipated that the number of potential new protein drugs and targets will escalate at an even greater rate than that observed in recent years However identification of a potential target is only part of the process in developing these new next generation protein based drugs that are increasingly being used to treat human disease Once a potential protein drug has been identified the next rate limiting step on the road to development is the production of sufficient authentic material for testing characterization clinical trials and so on If a protein drug does actually make it through this lengthy and costly process methodology that allows the production of the protein on a scale large enough to meet demand must be implemented Furthermore large scale production must not compromise the authenticity of the final product It is also necessary to have robust methods for the purification characterization viral inactivation and continued testing of the authenticity of the final protein product and to be able to formulate it in a manner that retains both its biological activity and lends itself to easy administration Therapeutic Proteins Methods and Protocols covers all aspects of protein drug production downstream of the discovery stage This volume contains contributions from leaders in the field of therapeutic protein expression purification characterization formulation and viral inactivation Concepts and Practices in Agricultural Extension in Developing Countries ,2008-01-01 Reimagining Animal Sheltering: Support Services and Community-Driven Sheltering Methods Julie Levy,Kevin Horecka,Peter Joseph Wolf,E.
