way that's fun for you and productive for your future in a way that's truly and unapologetically you. This book, this field manual, holds the secret formula that the industry probably doesn't want me to tell you. But I'm going to tell you anyway for only 20¢ because I support equitable accessibility to education and I think it's wrong that certain students and families are barred from higher education institutions simply because of socioeconomic factors limiting access to the coaching, training, and/or materials required to compete these days. This is that coaching, that training, those materials that you need to win to get into your dream school and to carve out whatever future you envision for yourself. It could all start with this field manual if you choose to apply the formula that's taken this past decade and hundreds of students to perfect. I humbly dedicate this field guide to the next generation to you. Use it wisely. The One Hour College Applicant, Lois Rochester, Judy Mandell, 1989
